A Message from Wiley regarding Journal Print Disruption during COVID-19

AASLD Members:

As more and more people are affected by COVID-19 restrictions, we want to share an important update from the AASLD journal publisher, Wiley, on decisions they’re making to manage publishing operations during the pandemic.

Due to the pandemic, Wiley is suspending the print production and distribution of all journals until further notice. A combination of country-wide lockdowns and vendor-partners working from home is leading to disruption throughout the publishing workflow. The most acute challenge is in the distribution of print content.

As an AASLD member, one of your membership benefits is full online access to all AASLD journals via the Wiley Online Library. Use your AASLD member log in to access full content from the online library.

If you need help accessing the online versions of the AASLD journals, please contact Amanda N. Thaxton, AASLD Membership Services Manager, at 703-879-1505 or membership@aasld.org.

COVID-19 is creating a very fast-moving situation, but both AASLD and Wiley are committed to ensuring the least disruption as possible to the assessment and dissemination of research in these challenging times.

Best wishes,

AASLD